Barrytown By Favorite Horse
And Tossed Hundred Feet When Train Struck Him—Was Uncle of Franklin D. Roosevelt And Superintendent of Horse Show at Dutchess Fair.

Poughkeepsie, Sept. 10.—Warren Delano, railroad director and uncle of Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic vice-presidential nominee, was killed at a railroad crossing at Barrytown, Dutchess county, late Thursday afternoon when a horse he was driving attached to a light buggy became frightened and bolted into the path of an express train of the New York Central Railroad.

Mr. Delano, his neck broken and his body crushed, was tossed a hundred feet from the crossing. The horse was carried still further. The animal was Mr. Delano's favorite mount, Belle, and was high spirited. Mr. Delano has a summer place at Barrytown, Steen Valtje, where his wife and daughter now are.

Mr. Delano was about 70 years old. He had driven to the Barrytown station to check a trunk for one of his guests and left the horse standing at the corner of the station. As the train approached the animal became restive, and Mr. Delano got into the buggy. The train was about 500 yards away when the animal reared and became unmanageable. Passengers waiting for a following train saw Mr. Delano carried madly onto the tracks, and the crash of the buggy against the express locomotive pilot.

Mr. Delano was a lover of horses, and the animal that caused his death was his favorite. Mr. Delano's stable at Steen Valtje was one of the finest in Dutchess county. He was superintendent of the horse show at the Dutchess County Fair, and at the exhibition Saturday next was to have driven Belle for the prize.

Mr. Delano was the son of the late Warren Delano, a noted engineer. He had large banking and railroad interests as a director of the Chicago, Indianapolis and Louisville Railroad, Louisville and Nashville Railroad, Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Company, Atlantic Coast Line Company, Union Mining Company. He was chairman of the board of directors of the Vinton Colliery Company.

His sister, Mrs. James Roosevelt, is the mother of the vice-presidential nominee. He was graduated from Harvard in 1873 and was a member of the University. Riding and Driving Engineers and Down-town clubs. The family residence in New York city is at 33 East Thirty-sixth street.

Mr. Delano leaves his wife, Mrs. Jennie Walters Delano; a son, Lyman Delano, of Wilmington, N. C., and three daughters, Mrs. Roland Redmond, of Tivoli, Mrs. F. B. Adams, of Greenwich, Conn., and Miss Laura Delano.

MAC SWINEY GOES ON TOWARD DEATH

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, Sept. 10.—Terence Mac Swiney, the hunger striking lord mayor of Cork, still lives. He spent a restless night in the Brixton jail infirmary and suffered considerable pains in his arms. This was the twenty ninth day of Mac Swiney's self imposed starvation.

Mrs. Mac Swiney and the blood relatives of the lord mayor continue their vigil. They have made no effort to persuade the lord mayor to relinquish his political beliefs and to take nourishment. Such a suggestion was made to Miss Mary Mac Swiney, but she spurned it.

Doctors were unable to say how long Mac Swiney would linger between life and death if he continues his hunger strike. At times he appears to be dying, but rallies with unexpected display of vitality.

The British government is now standing "pat" on its Irish policy and there appears little likelihood that any of the Irish hunger strikers will be freed.

Mac Swiney was able to converse briefly during the morning although his voice was so weak that his whispers could barely be heard. His mind seemed to ramble slightly at times, but for the most part he was lucid. He dictated replies to several messages of sympathy. These replies were taken by the Rev. Father Dominic, personal spiritual advisor to the lord mayor.

OLIVE THOMAS DIES IN PARIS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paris, Sept. 10.—Miss Olive Thomas, famous American motion picture actress died in the American hospital at Neuilly at 10 o'clock this morning of mercurial poisoning. Her husband, Jack Pickford, brother of Mary Pickford, was at her bedside.

Dr. Joseph Choate, an American physician who attended Miss Thomas, made a hard but futile fight for her life. She died peacefully, apparently suffering neither bodily nor mental anguish.

Miss Thomas swallowed a solution of alcohol and chloride of mercury several days ago. Her friends declared that the deadly potion had been taken by mistake and indignantly denied rumors that Miss Thomas had quarrelled with her husband. Miss Thomas took the poison thinking it was a sleeping potion.

The actress was rushed to the American hospital at Neuilly, where it was found she had taken enough poison to "kill several people."

HEIRESS FLEES IN OVERALLS

Seventeen Year Old Laura S. Fletcher Also Clips Off Own Hair After Eluding Guardians—Gloucester Unable to Find Motive.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Gloucester, Mass., Sept. 10.—A nation wide police search was started today for Miss Laura S. Fletcher, 17 year old Indianapolis heiress, who disappeared from her parents' summer home here, after clipping off her hair and donning a pair of overalls. Her parents are at a loss to explain why she went away.

The girl eluded a maid, in whose care she had been placed, and fled from Grapevine Cove, where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stoughton L. Fletcher, occupy a cottage.

Later a fisherman saw the missing girl near a copper paint factory at Rocky Neck, more than a mile from her home. Astonished, he watched her put on a pair of overalls, after discarding some feminine apparel and cut off her hair with a pair of scissors. Throwing the scissors away, the fisherman states, she shouldered a pair of oars and walked along Monmouth street in the direction of Rocky Neck. She was later seen in Rocky Neck, where all trace of her was lost.

The clothing, hair and scissors were turned over to the missing girl's parents. They identified all as belonging to their daughter.

Miss Fletcher's society girl friends along the north shore were shocked when they heard that she had donned her beautiful tresses and had gone away. As hours passed and she failed to return speculation developed into acute alarm. The Gloucester police feared the girl might have rowed out to sea during a fit of temporary derangement due to nervous breakdown. Search was made along the coast and ships at sea were notified by wireless to be on the lookout for her. Ponds in this section were dragged.

The strange caprice of the girl has mystified the police and her parents. She had been in the best of health and spirits, according to her intimates and her sudden impulse caused a sensation in exclusive circles along the north shore.

The police agreed today that Miss Fletcher's exit was one of the most romantic that had been called to their attention in years.

$4,879,000 IS ALL REPUBLICANS SEEK FOR FUND

This Is "Absolute Maximum" and Not $15,000,000 as Charged by Cox, Testifies Upham.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, Sept. 10.—The Republican campaign fund for 1920 for national, state, senatorial and congressional campaigns will total exactly $4,879,000. "If all the money is raised which is sought," and not the $15,000,000 charged by Governor James M. Cox.

This summed the flat testimony given by Fred W. Upham, treasurer of the Republican national committee, as he left the witness stand today for the second time in the senate sub-committee investigation into "slush fund" charges.

A campaign fund of $4,879,000, Upham told the senate investigators, "is the absolute maximum" aimed at by the Republican national organization.

Mrs. Valentine was for twenty-eight years a patient of the Middletown hospital. She was discharged from that institution twelve years ago and resumed her residence in Ellenville, where she has been somewhat active in church work. Her daughter, Mary Gwendolyn Valentine, who is an actress living in New York city, was appointed committee of her mother's estate several years ago. While Mrs. Valentine, who is seventy-three years old, was on a temporary stay in the city of Middletown on July of this year, she was committed to the Middletown State Hospital by Special Surrogate Charles E. Taylor, an acting county judge. The Rev. Mr. Hobson became interested in Mrs. Valentine's efforts to bring about her release from the institution and retained Cleon B. Murray of Ellenville to take the present proceedings. Mr. Murray appeared for Mr. Hobson and Mrs. Valentine at today's hearing, with Frank W. Brooks of this city, of counsel.

After the jury had been sworn, it developed that the State Hospital authorities were not represented by counsel, although notice of the application had been given by the hospital authorities to the attorney general's office at Albany, which office under the law is required to appear for state institutions in all legal proceedings. The various institutions no longer being allowed to procure counsel.

Telephone communication with the attorney general's office by Dr. Woodman, assistant superintendent of the Middletown Hospital, finally resulted in a message that there was nobody there in the Albany office who was authorized to retain local counsel or represent the hospital, and so deputy from Albany could reach Kingston until late this afternoon.

After consultation with counsel and doctors, the commissioners at once adjourned the matter until after dinner. The hearing was resumed this afternoon.

ILLS. MINERS WITHIN RIGHTS

"Vacation" Doesn't Violate Law, Says Palmer, Who Takes Charge of Drive on Coal Producers.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Sept. 10.—Striking miners now on "vacation" in the Illinois coal districts have not violated any existing war time legislation nor has any proof been produced to show that the miners had entered into a conspiracy to tie up the coal production, Attorney General Palmer held today.

"We cannot question the right of the miners to quit work," Mr. Palmer said, "and no evidence is available to show that the men in the anthracite fields are continuing on vacation through any unlawful means."

Officials declared there appears to be less dissatisfaction among the miners over the recent wage awards, and reports showed larger number of men returning to work.

Attorney General Palmer personally took a hand today in the department of justice's fight against coal profiteers, and calling for full reports on violations among hard and soft coal dealers, directed that the most vigorous prosecutions be instituted to check the boosting of prices, and if possible drive prices down to reasonable levels. A thorough investigation is under way to break up projected plans among operators to make unreasonable increases in price on the strength of the wage award and freight rate advances.

LUNACY CASE HEARD TODAY

Ellenville Rector Takes Measures to Review Proceedings on Behalf of Aged Church Member.

A hearing was had at the court house today in proceedings to determine the sanity and competency of Mrs. Mary S. Valentine of Ellenville, who was committed to the Middletown State Hospital for Insane while temporarily in that city on July 29 last.

The hearing was the first of its kind to be taken in Ulster county under an amendment to the insanity law, which became effective in 1909. Under the provisions of the amendment, a person committed to an insane asylum may take proceedings, personally or through a friend, and the matter is determined by three commissioners who are appointed by the court and a sheriff's jury.

In the present case, the application for the appointment of commissioners was made by the Rev. Hugh P. Hobson, rector of the Episcopal Church at Ellenville, of which church Mrs. Valentine is a member, and appointed Judge James Jenkins, Dr. C. F. Keefe and Egbert Ellsworth of Port Jervis as commissioners.

The jury selected to aid the commissioners in their determination was composed of Gilead A. Smith, Cyrus Van Nostrand, Edward I. Atwater, Elmer Molynieux, Willet I. Vandemark, Marden W. Ross, Alonzo Hunt, Lorenzo Hunt, George W. Peck, Major Alfred Tanner, E. Johnston Nichols and James Norton.

Mrs. Valentine was for twenty-eight years a patient of the Middletown hospital. Some real facts about
COFFEE

Time has dispelled many old illusions. Coal was once condemned as "injurious" and burned openly in the market place as a "public nuisance." For ten centuries the nations of the earth have enjoyed the benefits of coffee. Yet in this enlightened age coffee is sometimes declared "injurious"—another form of superstition. Coffee plays its part in the homes of the millions—three times a day every day. Coffee helped to win the war. It fed suffering Belgium. In Holland coffee is always ready to serve—and its people are healthy. You will find in REYNOLD'S RELIANCE a coffee of unsurpassed flavor and aroma. And our scientific process of roasting and grinding makes RELIANCE as healthful as it is delicious. Remember to ask for RELIANCE. It is always fresh at your grocers—guaranteed to please or your money back. Wm. T. Reynolds & Company, Inc., Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

WARD FOR CONGRESS

Next Tuesday, September 14, will be Primary Day, when the enrolled voters of all parties will have opportunity to express their choice for their party candidates who will be voted for at the election in November.

There are some primary contests in both the Republican and Democratic parties the most interesting of which, so far as Ulster county is concerned, is that between Charles B. Ward of Liberty, Sullivan county, and Miss Dorothy Frooks of the town of Saugerties, Ulster county, for the nomination for member of congress.

For the reason that this nomination so particularly affects the interests of Ulster county, the result of the canvass which has been made and which, without doubt will continue until the polls close on Primary Day, Republican voters have inquired particularly into the qualifications of the two candidates.

Miss Frooks has been a resident of Ulster county for some little time, having enrolled as a voter in the sixth district of the town of Saugerties last year for the first time. She has made numerous speeches throughout the county and has brought the votes of men and women on her record. Her record in Ulster county is somewhat short, although a few years ago she appeared here as a companion and adherent of "General" Rosalie Jones, who was making a tour of the state in the interests of equal suffrage. Miss Frooks recited her record in her speech delivered before the unofficial county convention at the Kingston Opera House, and her record as contained in that speech was published in The Freeman at that time.

The record of Congressman Ward has not been published in connection with the primary campaign, and as a matter of fairness, The Freeman believes it should call attention to it, and therefore departs from its usual policy of not advocating the election of candidates until they have been actually nominated in the primary election.

Congressman Ward is completing his sixth year as congressional representative of the twenty-seventh district, which comprises the counties of Sullivan, Ulster, Greene, Columbia and Schoharie. During that time he has constantly been at the service of the voters of this congressional district, as The Freeman has every reason to know. From conversation with men and women from all sections of Ulster county, Freeman representatives have become aware of the fact, aside from their own personal knowledge and experience, that Congressman Ward has at all times been ready to perform any service which a congressman can perform for the benefit of a constituent or a community. These services have extended all the way from the expediting of the procuring of passports which a somewhat tardy state department held up, to procuring pensions for war veterans who were entitled to them, or getting information regarding soldiers in the late war or performing services for them or their families.

His experience as a Congressman gave him the knowledge necessary for efficiency and his promptness has been proverbial in both houses of Congress there has been a rule which dates back to the early years of our government, that senators in service shall be recognized, and each term of Congressman Ward's service has given him not only greater experience but additional influence and power, both of which have been exercised at all times for the benefit of even the humblest of his constituents. At no time has Congressman Ward sought to use his power or influence for his personal ends but at all times he has worked for the interests of the men and women of the district which elected him as a representative. The instance cited of what he has done are but a few of the manifold and complex matters on which he has received requests from the men and women of Ulster county and the other counties comprising the district. Voters in every section of Ulster county need only to inquire of their neighbors to learn first hand of the instances of his efficient work.

which has continued without interruption whether Congress was in session at the time or not.

For six years Ulster county was associated with Dutchess and Putnam counties in a Congressional district which was represented by the late General John H. Ketcham. General Ketcham was a resident of Dutchess county and represented his district in Congress for many years. His long experience at Washington enabled him to make his district known to official Washington and the long service was recognized not only by his repeated re-election but also by official Washington which gave him what he wanted for his district and his constituents. Congressman Ward is following in worthy footsteps and his attention to the wants of his district and constituents has been unflinching throughout his entire Congressional career.

The Freeman takes no part in primary contests but as a matter of fairness, having published Miss Dorothy Frooks' description of her own services, it believes that the services of Congressman Ward should be set forth for the information of the voters of the county and for their guidance when they make their selection on Primary Day.

LITTLE LAUGHS

"The star witness in this breach of promise suit was the multi-millionaire's chauffeur."

"Well?"

"Thanks to his testimony, the chorus lady who was suing for $100,000 was glad to compromise the case for a mere $5,000."

"And what's the aftermath?"

"A dozen other multi-millionaires are reported to be trying to hire the chauffeur at his own price."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Mrs. Scapley: I really don't know what would happen. Richard, if ever you agreed with me on any subject.

"Do you think Miss Spinalis cheated at the ouija board?"

"I wouldn't go so far as to say she cheated," replied Miss Cayenne. "But I couldn't help noticing that it misspelled some of its words the same way she does."—Washington Star.

Ouch!

Mr. Gabb had been out at an all-night poker game and was trying to square himself when he got home at noon the next day. He had a package under his arm.

"Wouldn't you like to know what is in this package?" asked Mr. Gabb.

"I'm not a bit interested," replied Mrs. Gabb.

"Well, I bought something for the one I love best in the world," announced Mr. Gabb, with a grin.

"What did you buy yourself, collars or neckties?" snapped Mrs. Gabb. —Cincinnati Enquirer.

Teacher: "If Shakespeare were alive today, wouldn't he be looked upon as a remarkable man?"

Bright Lad: "He sure would. He'd be 300 years old."—American Legion Weekly.

"No, we have so little it takes two of us to find it."—Boston Transcript.

"Didn't Run For Office."

"Yes, Benedict Arnold was a bad egg."

"He was, however, man enough to leave the country when he turned traitor."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Domestic Drama.

"You know that woman?"

"Yes, she once entered my life for a brief space. All too brief."

"Eh?"

"She was our cook for three days."—Judge.

AT THE THEATERS

"Mary's Ankle" at Kew's—Also Joyce at Auditorium.

An all comedy program is slated for Kew's tonight and Saturday. Douglas MacLean and Doris May in "Mary's Ankle" tell all about a doctor without funds and patients who was persuaded by friends to announce his marriage in order to collect a fortune from a rich uncle. When the uncle announces his coming, the youth is unable to produce the bride. But fate causes a pretty girl to sprain her ankle in front of his office and then the fun commences. Mr. MacLean and Miss May are noted for their vivacity and rough that they inject into their work and "Mary's Ankle" provides an excellent vehicle. Just to make things livelier a four part comedy, "Twilight Baby," is also programmed. More and then more new stuff has ever been thought of before, starting Lloyd (Hans) Hamilton and Virginia Rappe, not counting those pigs and chickens, and dogs and babies, a tailless rooster, gun-powder, a bear giving cow and bird, bad, boot-leggers.

Alice Joyce in "The Winchester Woman" at the Auditorium tonight offers a different kind of photoplay, giving her one of the most powerful photoplays she has ever had. The picture is packed with strong situations and surprising turning points. Added features are the Fox news and Bray photographs. Tomorrow June Caprice in "The Love Cheat," also Alice Howell in "Rubens and Romance."

"The Rainbow Girl," musical comedy deluxe, will be at the Opera House Saturday matinee and night. Jiggs, Maggie, Dixie Moore and other cartoon characters created by the fertile mind of George McManus, will appear in life at the Kingston Opera House next Tuesday matinee and night, where "Bringing Up Father at the Seashore" will hold forth. From all advance accounts this season's production of mirth, melody, song, novelty, surprise and joy is far the best of the McManus "Father" series which Gus Hill has offered thus far.

CONDENSED CLASSICS

GIL BLAS

By ALAIN RENE LE SAGE

Condensation by

left a considerable fortune when he died, but he was given a good education and was admitted to the bar. From came in slowly and Le Sage lived extreme poverty. Yet he dared to marry and turned to the stage for means of support. For years he wrote, never really successful, but never actually in want. He was nearly forty years of age when a comedy gave him a Parisian reputation. The first two parts of "Gil Blas" were published in 1735, but the third part, which was the most successful, was not published until 1736, and not until 1737 was the last part published. During these twenty years he had often turned out play after play, and numerous books. He did not come to write until his seventeenth birthday had passed.

Outside of France Le Sage will always live because of his one book that runs among the world's masterpieces. "Gil Blas" is his masterpiece, an animated picture of Spain in its most colorful period. "It is a work," says Sir Walter Scott, "which renders the reader pleased with himself and mankind."

GIL BLAS, the only son of an old soldier, had reached the age of seventeen when his uncle, the village priest, who had taught him a little Latin, Greek and logic, sent him off with 40 ducats and a bad mule to study divinity at Salamanca.

His adventures began immediately. At his first stop he was cheated out of his mule; as he was eating his dinner a wily flatterer invited himself to be his guest and showed his gratitude by the good advice never to be taken in by praise. He had to pay an exorbitant reckoning and went on his way, "leaving to as many devils as there are saints in the calendar, the parasites, the landlord and the inn."

He soon fell into the hands of bandits, who made him join them on their raids. In one of them they captured Dona Mencha, wife of the Marquis de la Guardia, and brought her to their cavern. Gil Blas pretended to be ill and escaped with the grateful lady. He was arrested as one of the bandits and as he was wearing clothes recognized by one of their victims, he was thrown into jail. After several weeks' imprisonment his innocence was established, but the jailer had robbed him of everything.

At Burgos he sought out Dona Mencha who presented him with a hundred ducats and a costly ring.

He bought a pretentious outfit for twice its value and decided that instead of becoming a lieutenant, "he would make his way in this world rather than think of the next." A second gift of a thousand ducats from Dona Mencha confirmed him to his resolve.

He bought two mules and hiring a servant, set forth for Madrid. His servant conspired with several rogues to make a fool of him. One of them, Camilla, pretended to be related to Dona Mencha, invited him to hired lodgings as to her own home, and there he was feasted and flattered. As a mark of special favor she exchanged her ruby ring, which she declared was worth 300 pistoles, for his, and procured him an invitation to a great country seat for hunting and fishing.

But when he arose in the morning, he found his two mules, his portmanteau and Dona Mencha's pretended relatives had vanished. The ruby ring was a cheat.

Fortunately he fell in with a boy-hood friend, Fabricio, at Valladolid, and by his advice became a servant to a clergyman, the canon Sedillo, at whose house he led a easy life. The canon soon died, leaving him the worthless library, and the good fortune of becoming assistant to his physician, the famous Doctor Sangrado. Under him Gil Blas became particularly proficient in his method of practice, which consisted of nothing but blood-letting and "drinking of water." He decided that he made no money with this and expressed his opinion of the value of his victim was the threatened of a stout Burgundian, who threatened him with dire vengeance, and he fled to Madrid, where he became valet to a merchant and wealthy Don Bernardino, his only duty being to keep the wardrobe bristled and to tend fire. But he happened to fall in with Fabricio, captain of the brigades, and Don Bernardino, seeing him in such an picture company, discharged him with six ducats.

For one reason or another he kept changing employers; he served now a dissipated hidalgo, then an intriguing actress, then an aged libertine whose daughter, in gratitude for aiding her to win back her recreant lover, Don Luis Pacheco, gave him a hundred pistoles, and, on her father's death, got him a place with still another aged roger, Don Gonzales, whose dressing operations, when he arose at noon, reminded him of the resurrection of Lazarus.

Here again he acted as intermediary in a love affair, but when he told his infatuated employer that he was being duped, he was turned off, though given a recommendation to the Marquesa de Chaves, reputed the cleverest woman in Madrid, because she was as solemn as an owl, and rarely spoke. Her salon, called "the Fashionable Institution for Literature, Taste and Science," was the resort for the wits and notables of Madrid.

Here again he had easy work, but getting into trouble about a girl, was compelled to leave the city. On his way to Toledo he rescued a young nobleman, named Don Alfonso, from arrest. They became friends and after Don Alfonso reached home, he and his father became Gil Blas' patrons, placing him as secretary to his relative, the archbishop of Granada, who was inordinately vain and as broad as he was long.

Gil Blas praised his sermons and was regarded as a young man of excellent judgment until after the prelate's mind was affected by apoplexy and his homilies became discordant ravings. Gil Blas obeyed the archbishop's command to tell him if he felt short in his preaching and was indignantly packed off. Reduced to extremities once more, he passed as the brother of a disreputable actress and thus secured the position as secretary to a Portuguese grandee, the Marquis de Marialva. The trick was discovered. He returned to Madrid and after many amusing and not always creditable adventures, was appointed under secretary to the duke of Lerma, prime minister to the king. His duties may be gauged by his comment: "One makes a merit of any dirty work in the service of the great."

His experiences with the upper and the lower world, with actors, poets, libertines, physicians, bandits, adventurers, and hidalgos and their servants, had sharpened his wits, and his native ability and smattering of education gave him growing influence. He was courted, flattered and bribed; his conceit and avarice became colossal.

He declared that "a court had all the soporific virtues of Lethe in the case of poor relations" and confessed that "every trace of his former gay and generous temper had disappeared."

Pride came before a fall. Having been employed to procure a questionable mistress for the heir-apparent, he was arrested by the king's orders and thrown into the dungeons of Segovia. The prince intervened, but he was exiled from the two Castiles. All his property was seized and his mercenary engagement to a wealthy jeweler's daughter was broken.

Then his friend, Don Alfonso, whom he had got appointed as governor of Valencia, presented him with a small estate near that city.

On his way thither he stopped at his birthplace and found his uncle a mental wreck and his mother worn out in caring for his dying father. He gave his father a pompous funeral, and settled an annuity on his mother, but the town's people were so indignant with him for his neglect of his family that they threatened to mob him.

Glad to escape with his life, he reached Valencia, where he was received at his new home by seven or eight servants provided by Don Alfonso. He got rid of most of them and lived frugally, marrying Antonia, daughter of his farmer, Don Basilio. But his idyllic happiness ended with the death of his wife in childbirth.

Soon afterward the crown prince came to the throne and offered him a place of high responsibility. Gil Blas who had learned wisdom, replied that "all he wanted was a good situation, where there was no inducement to violate his conscience, and where the favors of his prince were not likely to be bartered for filthy lucre."

He was made coadjutor to the prime minister, who entrusted him with the education of his illegitimate son and heir. This brought him a title. After some years when the duke lost the king's favor, Gil Blas followed him into retirement, and on his death was remembered with a bequest of 10,000 pistoles. He returned to his beautiful estate, made a second marriage, and lived, happy and respected, training his children wisely and confiding to his ministers all his errors, crimes, joys and sorrows, together with his opinions of literature, society and the stage. His narrative is interspersed with long and fascinating stories related by various characters who he had met; these and his own adventures furnish a vivid picture of the romantic Spain of the seventeenth century.

"Gil Blas" is one of the wisest and most amusing of romances, and though it is not free from the conventional portrait of that class, vice is not depicted attractively and its teaching is generally moral.

YANKS' PENNANT CHANCE SLIPPING

The battle for the American League pennant today gives the appearance of being a two club affair. The Yankees are two and one-half games behind the leading Indians and one-half game behind the second place White Sox. As the Yankees must finish the season on the road, while Cleveland and Chicago are at home, only the flashiest kind of a showing will keep the New York club in the race.

The Yankees and Indians mix again today and tomorrow in the Ohio city. If the Indians duplicate yesterday's feat and trim Huggins' athletes again today, there are many who believe the Yankees will be through as a pennant contender.

In the National League the Brooklyn Dodgers are back in the lead as a result of their double win over the Cardinals, while the Reds were breaking even at Boston. The defeat of the Giants by the Cubs set the New York club back considerably.

Brooklyn and New York are the favorites today in the National League race as they finish the season at home, while the Reds must do battle on foreign fields.

POMONA GRANGE HAD GALA DAY

(Contributed)

Pomona Grange affords a gala day for the Patrons of Ulster county and never more so than when Pomona meets at Lake Katrine. The warm welcome of the Lake Katrine members coupled with their attractive Grange hall and surroundings makes every Patron eager to attend and none were disappointed on Friday, September 5.

Chief among the matters of interest were the reports of the progress of the various Granges—all showing increase in membership and devotion to the order. (One item brought out was that only two Granges hold their meetings on the advanced time, showing the deep-seated aversion farmers feel toward interference with the clock.) The hope was expressed that the infant Grange now organized at Mt. Tremper would be big enough to appear at the next Pomona meeting.

Some time was taken in discussion of the G. L. F. Exchange, which represents the newest venture in co-operation of New York state farmers and deserves the support of all. Even the most skeptical was convinced of the wisdom of investing in the Exchange after Manager Chase, of the Farm Bureau, explained its aims and the section of the county not yet subscribing for its quota of shares was fired with new determination to do its part.

During the "Lecturer's Hour," Manager Chase again spoke of the G. L. F. Exchange and the work of the Farm Bureau in furthering the interests of the Exchange. Mr. Chase gave a very excellent resume of the Farm Bureau work which has been of great value to Ulster county farmers. Next year the spraying service is to be improved, a spraying expert being engaged to advise the growers. The apple census taken shows the crop of Ulster county apples when ready for market to be $5.56 per barrel. Space does not permit an account of all the Farm Bureau work which Mr. Chase outlined.

Miss Stuart, of the Home Bureau, followed with an account of that work, showing the value to the women of the county, of the training in dressmaking and millinery; the interest manifested in the study of civics; the need of more labor-saving devices in the farm home; and the promising future before the Home Bureau.

Mr. Hepworth gave an amusing and interesting account of his winter in Florida, closing with an invitation to all to "go South." One member promptly "moved" that the Pomona hold its next meeting in Florida.

Mrs. W. D. Tallman, Worthy Flora of the State Grange, also dealt with the wonders of Florida and the sweetness of the southern fruits ripened on the trees. She also gave a report of the Dutchess County Pomona which was largely attended and highly interesting.

Miss Margaret Jansen pleased her audience by her fine rendering of two piano solos.

G. E. Davis, worthy overseer, who has been critically ill in the hospital for weeks, was greatly missed in the meeting, and the sympathy of the members was expressed in flowers and friendly messages.

The next Pomona meeting is to be held at Plattkill, the Pomona master accepting the cordial invitation of Master Tenney of Plattkill.

The Plattkill Grange is pressing to the fore in Grange work and all Patrons are assured of a welcome there in December.

A TRIBUTE

To the Late Mrs. John F. Frazier of Kingston.

The passing away of a friend and neighbor such as Mrs. John F. Frazier has again brought regret and tear-stained eyes to a multitude of friends. The neighbors who knew and respected her in life are now bowed down in sorrow. The taking away of a soul so righteous when everything seemed hopeful and promising has left them in a state of bewilderment and wonder, but let them grieve not, husband, son, brother, sister and neighbor. Their loss is great, I know, but the reward that they shall receive will be great. For the way of God is shrouded in mystery, but some day the cloud will vanish and in the silvery sunlight they shall see her gracious form and kindly face. The face that expressed kindness and the lips that advocated generosity will again be seen and heard, for she is not dead, only away. The good shall not perish and Mrs. Frazier has just passed on to another sphere to assist in the unfinished work left undone here.

Leaving behind her body to repose in Mountain View Cemetery, the beautiful little grave yard that nestles beneath the foot hills of the Catskills, where the birds sing and daisies are left to grow, is where friends, neighbors and acquaintances will find a newly made grave covered with floral offerings that mark her last resting place. The floral tributes were extravagantly beautiful and liberal to excess, neighbors, friends and even mere acquaintances showing alike their fond appreciation of one who had nursed and befriended them when a friend was mostly needed. Mrs. Frazier was best known for her charity and sincerity of purpose, ever ready to do unto others as she would have others do unto her, and all remembered her as she lay cold in death. As one friend was heard to remark: "Her presence was like the rising sun that comes creeping over the hill tops. No matter where she went, she was always welcomed with a glad smile, her face meant joy and comfort. That she be buried in Mountain View within the suburbs of Saugerties was one of her last wishes and it is less to say that Captain John, the ever faithful and devoted husband, carried out this long and cherished desire, and may he who watched over her tenderly and attended to every wish be the first to greet and embrace her when the dark and mysterious veil goes up at the Golden Gate."

Tent Meetings at Milton

Milton, Sept. 9.—Next Sunday Bishop Von DeHougen of Odessa, Russia, will be present and speak. His father, governor of the Province of Odessa, was beheaded, his son was cut to pieces before his eyes by the Bolsheviks and his wife who was of royal birth died in the salt mines of Siberia where she and her husband had been sent as exiles because of their Christian faith.

The bishop is a man baptized in the Holy Ghost and the love of God fills his life. He is just recently returned from the country of Russia and expects to go back there very soon even though he has been forbidden to do so by the authorities there. Not very often has Milton been honored by the presence of a man of this character. Come out and hear him.

Services Sunday at 10:30 a. m., 2:30 p. m. and 8 p. m. The tent will be open at 10 o'clock Sunday morning for any one who desires to come early and wait on God.

We have been greatly encouraged during the meetings thus far by the presence of a number of God's people from a distance as well as the assistance of several Christian workers from various parts. Come, praying and believing for God's Holy Presence on the Sabbath.

Merely putting a Heavy Truck on Air is Not Enough

NOT all pneumatic-tired trucks are delivering economy.

Some owners would have found it cheaper to stick to solid tires than to run on pneumatics not built to meet trucking conditions.

Merely putting a heavy truck on air is not enough.

The air has got to be contained in something—in something stronger than the ordinary pneumatic tire.

We don't recommend pneumatics for all truck uses.

But where we do recommend them, we recommend U. S. Nobby Cords — truck pneumatics built to meet trucking conditions—with side walls bulwarked, flaps moulded, breaker strips multiplied and cords positively anchored around the bead wires—features that give U. S. Nobby Cords the exclusive position they occupy today.

A HIGH TRIBUTE

Paid to Late Mrs. Church of High Falls.

(Contributed.)

On the sixteenth of March, 1889, eight little girls met in what was then the vestibule of the Reformed Church at High Falls, N. Y., and under the leadership of Miss Amanda Krom organized a King's Daughters Society.

This mystic circle was opened at different times until it numbered in all fourteen girls.

At a time in life when most women are wont to consider active duties done, she took up this trying task of training for life work, just average little girls. How well she succeeded is borne out by the fact that of the first thirteen all but one united with the church in the following five years.

At meetings held every two weeks, extending over a period of six years, these girls were taught to sing reverently, to search the Scriptures, read them intelligently and pray the prayer of faith.

The need for missionary effort, both home and foreign, was impressed on young minds, while childish fingers were taught to make articles both decorative and useful. Some times the garments were given direct to the mission boards, while at other times the articles were sold and the money given.

Nor did the work always take the mind from home, for in the secretary's report of the meeting on August 5, 1893, we find these words: "On motion, resolved that we carpet our church and hold a fair for the purpose of procuring the necessary funds, and that we commence work immediately." After all these years it is not too much to say that the "fair" was a success, the carpet was earned and laid in an incredibly short time when we consider that the work was all in the hands of young girls.

Each meeting had its social hour, assured. When our leader read entertaining stories or we indulged in games, which, according to season, ran the whole range of pure, girlish fun. Once each year, we repaired to the woods, where our regular meeting over, we picnicked in good old country style.

Were we model girls? Not by any means, but above, around, and among us, was the personal influence of a Godly woman, who by her mature knowledge of life, could realize the difference between petty tendencies and development of true character.

With what rare patience, she watched over the work of untrained fingers. Straightened this seam, that hem. With what kindly wisdom she selected the right story to relate, the best book to read, and with what reverence, yet a sense of fatherly nearness, she did the work of prayer.

As larger life duties scattered these daughters, regular meetings stopped, but from time to time re-unions were held. No record was ever kept of these meetings; memory alone makes them real to us. The last one was at her home on February 19, 1915, where four daughters spent the short winter afternoon the day after her seventy-eighth birthday.

All through the years her keen interest in these girls never flagged, in 1918 she wrote one of them, saying: "You King's Daughters have a warm spot in my heart," and again in 1919: "You King's Daughters are much in my thoughts. Do you remember the original ten? Those were happy days for me."

Her many gifts to her church are known to us all; but her Master, alone, knows the value of her gift of service to these girls.

In loving remembrance of this life, they have placed in the old church a small table of Italian marble, and though the clasp of her life is broken, the precious garment lives on in their lives.

This circle of fellowship formed thirty-one years ago, snapped on the 30th of August when Mrs. Preston Church the last one to join slipped away to her reward, leaving with us only pleasant memories.

An Actual Lottery.

Marriage lotteries are still in vogue during October in some parts of India. The names of both sexes eligible for marriage are written on slips of paper and put into separate compartments. The final selection is made by drawing one of each kind and the young man and woman whose names are drawn, receive a letter of introduction to the priest who will perform the marriage ceremony. After which the young couple are married.

Determining Height of Mountains.

The height of mountains is ascertained by barometric observation. The height of the pressure of atmosphere at the base and higher levels. An instrument called the aneroid barometer is graduated especially for this purpose. It can also be used with a leveling instrument and theodolite, but either way requires technical knowledge.

HEALTH OFFICERS END SESSIONS

Dr. L. K. Stolle, health officer of District No. 2567, has just returned from Saratoga Springs, where he has been attending the annual conference of sanitary officers and public health nurses of the state of New York, which was held on September 7, 8 and 9. There were present at this conference more than 1,000 health officers and public health nurses.

Dr. Matthias Nicoll, acting commissioner of health, described the health center project, which is a plan for providing for residents in small cities and rural districts of the state scientific and medical treatment, hospitals and dispensary and nursing care at a cost within their means. This project also will assist the local medical practitioner in caring for his cases by providing facilities for accurate diagnosis by groups of specially qualified physicians and surgeons. It is planned to have all these activities a part of the health center so that facilities for diagnosis and advice may be obtainable by each or all.

Dr. John A. Amyot, deputy minister of health, Dominion of Canada, in describing the public health work of Canada, pointed out the similarity existing between procedures now in use in Canada and those which have been in practice in the state of New York.

Dr. I. S. Wechsler of the Mt. Sinai Hospital, New York city, made the important announcement that the cause of sleeping sickness (encephalitis lethargica), which was so prevalent last winter, had been discovered. The cause was found to be a filterable virus, a germ so small as to be able to pass through the finest porcelain filter which is made.

"In order to reduce unnecessary deaths among infants and mothers occurring as a result of child birth it is important that proper prenatal and postnatal care be given," said Dr. W. E. Studdiford of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York city. "The important message conveyed was that every expectant mother should place herself under proper medical care and should receive careful physical examinations at frequent intervals in order to prevent any untoward occurrence or complication at child birth."

Pretty Pauline Buzenle, who despite the fact that she is but 18 years old, has been placed in charge of the California state finger print department. The young lady is a finger print expert. An increase in crime is predicted by California officials, for pretty Miss Buzenle must hold the hand of the "criminals" when making finger prints.

To Rescue Drowning Person.
As soon as a drowning man begins to lose his recollection he gradually slackens his hold until he quits altogether. A rescuer should be careful to avoid being grasped, however. The safest method of approach is at the head. Grasp the stranger by the hair, turning him on his back. Then throw yourself on your back and swim, holding the man by his hair, his back to your stomach.

"Tragic Century"

The sixteenth century is called the "tragic century" on account of the great number of deaths occurring in it. The whole world was swept by plagues throughout the hundred years. Pestilence nearly depopulated China, and raged throughout Germany, Holland, Italy, Spain, England, France and Russia. The "sweating sickness," which broke out in England in 1550, caused the death of nearly one-half the population of the large cities of that country. The century was also noted for its many wars.

What "Mark Twain" Means.

"Mark Twain" is a river boat used by the freedmen to indicate sound. "Mark Twain" means that the water is about two fathoms deep. A story is told that while Samuel L. Clemens (whose name he chose) was Mark Twain, was a pilot he asked a friend who was taking soundings what two fathoms sounded like. "Mark Twain," he said, "is a regularity in signing his name while he was a reporter on the Virginia City Enterprise.

TWO OF A KIND

By GEORGE E. STREETER

(Copyright.)

He sat in front of the post office every working day throughout the year. No one seemed to know his real name, but the townspeople called him Armless John, and being otherwise remarkable for a peculiar kind of stammer, he was for some years the object of pity. Around his neck he wore a sign bearing the following rather ambiguous appeal:

KIND FRIENDS
Please help a POOR man
WILLING but UNABLE to work with a LARGE FAMILY.

According to his own statements he had lost his arms in a variety of ways; the juvenile population had been informed that sharks—or bears—had eaten his lost arms; to very old and simple-minded ladies it was "damp," or "on the railway," or just "cautious." He had also "fallen from the mast-head," "dropped out of a balloon," and "got caught in an elevator." Sometimes his loss had occurred while "fighting in Cuba," or engaged in "blasting rocks in California." In fact, of "moving accidents," Armless John was a long way ahead of Othello.

His memory being somewhat treacherous, he sometimes had to listen to this kind of a remark:

"Why! you told me last month that you lost your arms in Peru—now you say it was in Australia; you must either be lying, or had a lot of arms to start with."

To all such personal and unkind observations, the stammering beggar would reply somewhat like this:

"Wa-wa-wa-wa! I in-sen-sible at the time!—at the time! How'd I dye a-sen-sible? (He had a habit of breaking off like that.) "But I lost 'em, you 'b-b-bet."

A man of perhaps fifty years of age, shabbily dressed, stopped one morning in front of Armless John.

"Nice morning," said the stranger.

"E-b-b-b-b, sir," agreed John.

"Yours is a bad case, my friend," rejoined the other.

"T-terrible, sir."

"How did you lose your arms?"

"Gun p-p-powder explosion at Mel-mel-bourne."

"Australia?"

"The beggar shook his head.

"That's my native place," added the stranger.

"I don't mean there. Mel-mel-bourne in Kentucky is the p-p-place, all right."

"You're a liar, Phillips. Do you know Sing Sing?" asked the man.

"Never there," answered John, now looking for the first time in the other man's face.

"Yes, you were, my friend. You and I spent about five years there. What an old fraud you are! How do you manage to dispose of your arms like that?"

John was speechless, as well as stammerless, though still apparently armless.

"I hope ye won't squeal on me, Tom," he remarked.

"That all depends. Have you got a large family, as the sign says?" inquired Tom.

"There's six of us altogether, including the dogs."

"Well, you'll have to pay me so much a week, and I won't say a word," replied the other.

"There ain't enough comin' in to do that," said John dolefully.

"Something must be done," remarked Tom. "I haven't got work, and I can't get any."

"Suppose you come up to the house tonight, and we'll talk things over. Go away now, Tom, do; see you to-night."

The stranger moved away slowly, remarking to an old lady about to drop a coin in the little tin mug: "That's a bad case, mum; the poor fellow lost his arms falling off the roof of a church."

"Did he, indeed?" sympathetically said the lady. "I always give him a trifle when I pass, but I thought he lost his arms in battle."

The ex-convicts were holding a mid-night session.

"I've thought out a scheme, Tom, which will pay us both, and we'll be independent of each other. Suppose you go and stand at the library, and be a blind man. There isn't such a fellow in the place. Every day one of the children can bring your dinner down to you, and also lead you home at night. I'm sure you'll make more than I do."

"Don't suit me," answered Tom. "I ain't a-going to keep my eyes shut all day. I think I'd better be a one-armed sailor, suffering from a short-bill."

"That'll never do," said John. "I'm in the short business at there, you know. The blind dodge is the only one any good, so far as I can see. I suppose there's a fortune in being a 'Poor Blind Man.'"

"I can't see it," answered the doleful Tom.

"You're not supposed to see any-thing," replied John, with a laugh, which the other did not relish.

"I've got it," said John. "I'll be a one-eyed man, with a weak eye, which the other did not relish."

In a few days there appeared a total sign on the wall in town, carrying a small, simple sign—

PITY THE BLIND

His first day was very wearisome, but Tom got through it all right, and had a good many coins as a result. He did well, and very soon the receipts of Armless John fell off.

"Tom's simply ruining my business," said John to his wife one evening.

"All day long old women come to me, and speak of the 'poor blind man' who lost his sight through reading a Bible with too close print. I wish something'd happen to him."

Strange as it may seem, but within a week, while the little girl was handing something to eat to the blind man, Tom, the dog, caught Tom by the leg and caused that victim of close biblical study not only to shout and use sundry passages not found in any volume, but also led him to open his eyes, in the presence of a wondering and sarcastic crowd, including an officer of the law, who at once took charge of the sham Bartineus, and introduced him next day to the magistrate.

"Charge of vagrancy, your honor. Been pretending to be blind, your honor, but I've been suspecting him for days. Yesterday a dog bit him, and he opened his eyes, and when he saw me he started to run away, your honor."

"Whose dog was it?" asked the judge, detecting the possibility of another case.

"Belonged to a little girl, your honor; daughter of that no-armed man," replied the officer.

The judge lectured Tom and imposed a sentence of three months in jail, and warned him that the dog die, the owner, "that poor cripple," would have remedy against him at civil law.

"That poor cripple," as you call him," said Tom, "has got arms."

"This is strange," said the judge. "Constable, inquire into this, and if you find the prisoner's story true, bring that other fraud before me to-morrow."

Constable Flynn "inquired" into the matter, and found that Armless John, Mrs. Armless John, and family had left town the previous evening, shortly after the arrest of Thomas.

Now, gentle reader:

This tale offers the following for the consideration of a gullible and patient people:

1. Fakery is taken—but take 'em easy.

2. Beware of the Dog—and the POOR BLIND MAN.

3. Be sure your FRIENDS will find you out.

4. The "far-seeing" public is—oh, so blind.

5. Help others out—of town.

HELPED BURGLAR TO ESCAPE

Four-Year-Old Miss Is Regretting That She Was So Polite to Her Visitor.

Burglars always have been the pet aversion of Margaret Bearley of Omaha, eight years of age. She admits she is just scared to death of a burglar.

When it was too hot to play Margaret slipped into her nightgown and crept up on the lounge in the guest room to rest.

Looking up from the wallpaper sample book with which she was amusing herself Margaret beheld a strange man standing by the dresser. He wore a workman's black cap and carried some electric-light cords.

"Oh," he said pleasantly, "I'm the electric-light man. I've come to inspect the lights and I got sort of mixed up in the rooms."

"I'll show you the way," volunteered Margaret, and she jumped up, slipped on a tiny kimono and escorted the electric-light man all through the upstairs. Now the police are looking for the man with a black cap and two electric light cords and Margaret's family call her "the burglar's pal."

An Indian Santa.

The Jolly Old Saint Nick of white children did not visit the Indian reservation in central New York this year. In his stead there was a real Indian Santa with a headgear of feathers and other garments worn by Indians when Santa first came to America. He was trimmed with corn tassels and in place of a whip, which to the Indian children means cruelty, he carried a corn stalk to drive his team.

None of the little red fables on the bleak reservation were forgotten. He left them arrows, snow snakes, corn bread stuffed with fruit, cookies shaped like pine trees and chipmunks and a kind of sausage made from the hearts of wild animals. Honey made up for the lack of sugar. Synagogue, churches, the Indian Welfare Society and other allied organizations were active in preparing this Christmas.

Stirred Up a Pudding.

One Sunday some friends of ours were spending the day with us. While I was preparing dinner the women came into the kitchen and asked me if there was anything she could do to help me. I told her she could stir up a chocolate pudding. She fixed it and when it came time for our dessert my husband, who is always saying things he hasn't ought to, remarked: "Think this is the poorest pudding I ever knew you to make."—Exchange.

Yuck.

"I suppose my blisters are not the case your mother used to make."

"Of course, they are not, my dear. Yours are it to eat."

Selection on Vegetables.

Experiments by Dr. J. C. Coulter prove that indigestion diseases of the stomach and lungs are transmitted easily by washing fruits and vegetables that have been used by the sick in the same water as vegetables for the rest of the household.

Miss Lillian Wagner

Miss Lillian Wagner, wearing a diamond-studded party valued at $12,000, which she demonstrated before the recent jewellers' convention at Louisville, Ky. The male section of the convention were very enthusiastic. It is said, but the women buyers were of the opinion that the novelty would not sell.

Good Servant, Poor Master.
It is well to have a hobby, says the New York Medical Journal. It is well to have a hobby which can be used as a faithful servant. It is well to have a hobby as long as you can ride it, but when it begins to ride you it is better to look about for another steed.

Stand Patter.
Two operators, originated from "stand patter," a patter term used by a player to encourage his audience to play each original deal less without helping the hand by drawing cards. The term was first applied to political stand by Mark Twain, in 1892, to indicate the attitude of the world's leaders of the day.

GIVE IT TO MOLE

Little Animal Merely Qualifies as a Samson.

Venerable Fisherman Tells Story That Should Remove All Doubt Concerning the Strength of the Small Earth Disturber.

"Do you want to know the most powerful animal for its size in the world?" The question was asked just after a venerable fisherman had landed a fine eastern brook trout, says Howard M. Wright in the Portland Oregonian. We were standing on the shore of one of the lakes well back in the Cascades.

I had only a few moments before unslung my pack at his cabin, and, taking a trail that led to the lake, had found him right in his glory. I, of course, was interested in getting all the data the old fellow had to offer and we sat down on a log and as he produced a Missouri meerschaum I handed out a box of tobacco. He proceeded to fill up with what he called his favorite brand next to H. O.

That gave me a clue and I knew at once the ancient angler could tell some big ones. He fired up deliberately and crossed his legs in a leisurely manner.

"Well, sir," he started out, "I reckon, according to what one of them scientists told me that happened in here a while back that the mole has got 'em all stopped. I had been telling some stories about being towed around in a boat by a big fish off'n the Newfoundland banks and after I got through he waited a little while and then said:

"Well, captain, I have never had a lot of experience with big fish, but I certainly had my eyes opened one day. I had accidentally caught a live mole, and for no particular reason I brought it into the house and put it on the floor. It began to wander about the room and finally came up against the leg of a chair which had-pened to be up close to the wall. The mole smelled it over a little, backed up a little, sniffed some and put his nose in between that chair and the wall and pushed her aside as if she had been a puff ball.

"That certainly got my interest, so I said to myself, 'Looka here, Mr. Mole, we'll try you out and see what your limits are.' I hunted around until I found a Webster's dictionary and a big family Bible. I placed these on the chair and piled other books on top of them until that chair would hold no more and waited for him to try it out.

"Pretty soon he came, keeping close to the wall. This time he never stopped to sniff, but walked right through.

"That got me, but I scratched my head a little and when I saw Mr. Mole coming up for the third time I jumped on top of the pile of books. But it was no use; he kept right on going and slid the whole business of us right to one side.

"Well, I was somewhat amazed, but suddenly a thought came to me and I went out and called in my neighbor, a big, fat man, weighing a few pounds under 300. He straddled aboard.

"On came the mole, this time his muscles fairly standing out to get into the fray. But he was no foolhardy young mole. He took time to size up the situation, sort of shrugged his shoulders and acted as if he was spitting on his hands. Finally he poked his nose in between the legs of that chair and the wall and raised those mighty shoulders. The chair creaked a little, moved slowly to one side and the mole passed—but the chair broke and the fat man came down with a thud on the mole's back. And, do you know, that mole hesitated only a moment, and then started for the corner of the room, carrying the fat man on his back."

Not All Flattery.

The wife of an Indianapolis traveling man is a poor correspondent. Her letters are short and sometimes do not arrive within a week of each other. Naturally before they reach him he is often rather worried over home affairs as to family health and such things. So on his last trip home he said: "No matter how far away I am from Indianapolis the first day I fall to receive a letter I shall come straight home."

Since then his daily letters have come regularly and are also heavy and long. At first he was much gratified but now he is beginning to wonder whether or not he should feel satisfied.

Had Their Tribulations.

Ten years ago George I. Getty and Jessie S. Turner, Chicago, first cousins, were pronounced man and wife by a minister in a Green Green marriage at St. Joseph, Mich. Both being Catholics they were married again by a priest when they returned to Chicago. Two years later they were separated, because the statutes of Illinois and Michigan forbid first cousins to marry. Now they have just been married again in Kentucky, where the marriage of first cousins is legal.

Seeking a New Plant.

In 1916 a scientific man named Fremont discovered a new variety of corn plant in the woods of St. Tammany Parish, Louisiana, and it is claimed today at the Arnold Arboretum, New Harvard has written to New Orleans asking to have Louisiana searched again for the rare growth.

DADDY'S EVENING

THE KAGU BIRD.

"Glad to see you boys and girls," said the Kagu bird, to the children who were in the bird house of the zoo. Now the children couldn't understand Kagu talk but the keeper who understood the birds so well knew what they were saying and also enjoyed telling the children.

"Yes," said the Kagu bird, "I come from New Caledonia. I haven't the least objection if you look that up on your maps. I don't mind in the least. In fact I'd be quite flattered if I thought you did."

"I'm about the size of a toucan bird as you can see. I don't consider myself very enormous or very small. I am just a nice size, oh, boys and girls?"

And the Kagu bird put his head on one side as though to see if the boys and girls looked as though they agreed with him.

"Now I am a sub-order of the crane family, meaning I'm like them in a smaller sort of way."

"Of course I am nowhere near the size of a crane—gracious, mercy, no!"

"I am a distant cousin of the trumpeter birds and the sun bitters."

"I am very fond of showing off as you can see. I like to show off my plumage and my wings. I enjoy spreading them so you can see how fine they are. And my crest is beautiful too, eh?"

"Of course, you see, another reason why I like to show myself and pose and strut about and let you see how lovely I am is because I am rare in the zoo."

"They don't have many Kagu birds. I'm the only one here at present, and we're always rare, and not often found in zoos."

"Don't you like my long blue-gray beak, and my gray-blue and white breast? I do hope you like my coloring."

"Do you admire my black head and back and the white under the end of the tail?"

"To show you I'm not conceited I don't mind if you look at the Mexican crow next door, or next cage. He is small but he is brilliantly colored and not like the crows you have at all. He is more brilliantly colored than any of the North American species I believe."

"Then there is the white jackdaw from Europe. He's a handsome fellow, and there is the true white crow next to him. He's a nice fellow too."

"There is that adorable little bleeding heart pigeon over yonder. His heart isn't really bleeding—it just looks that way from his coloring. He comes from the Island of Luzon, and he is grayish tan, as you can see, with red feathers lengthened and stiffened over his little breast. That is how he happened to get his name, you see."

"I Love Admiration."

"There is the Yucatan jay. When that fellow leaves his nest his head is white and his beak is yellow. At the time of his first molting his head becomes black but the beak does not become black until some time later. He is a nice gray color and his black head and breast and tail are nice touches. He is a neatly dressed fellow. I suppose you would call him the size of a crow."

"He is larger than the Mexican crow."

"There is the dear little Madagascan Weaver, a dear little creature with his reddish body and black spots."

"In the winter Little Mr. Madagascan Weaver wears the same dull colors as Mrs. Madagascan Weaver but in the spring he is all decked forth as you now see him."

"There is the Brazilian Silver Beaked Tanager from Eastern Brazil. Doesn't he look like a scarlet tanager taking a bath?"

"As you know and girls, you're looking at the Kagu bird. I won't have to tell you about the other birds. But I like to see you in the zoo and to have so many friends with me."

"We have nothing and hope you've understood all I've told you for I know all about my neighbors, you see. But oh, that is right, come and talk to me! There I will strut about for you and spread my wings so you can see how what they look like."

"You look as though you like me. Ah, that is very good for I love admiration."

"Yes, the Kagu bird loves to be admired."

"The most certainly does," said the keeper.

"The most certainly does," the children said.

Might Ask 'Em.

"It has always been a wonder to me," remarked the fellow who lives next door, on the way downtown this morning, "that some of these fellows who apparently know enough all their time, do for a living—nothing (H.) but."

Parliamentary Law.

Parliamentary law is the system of rules by which deliberative bodies are organized and conducted. Certain rules of parliamentary procedure have always been found necessary for the accomplishment of the purposes for which deliberative assemblies are called.

The "Harmattan."

The name "harmattan" has been given to a dry, hot wind which periodically blows from the interior of Africa toward the Atlantic during December, January and February. Often, within an hour after the harmattan begins to blow, green grass in its course is dry enough to burn.

The "Paranoid Terror."

That was an unusual structure built (Lion) it had nine stories, three with winged porches from which bells and music were heard. This was destroyed by the Tsinghs in 1923, but now in history as one of the seven wonders of the world again.

This is the last photograph made of the late Earl of Rothes. It shows him sitting with his family at their residence, Rothes House, in Scotland. The Earl was killed in a motor car accident about a week after this photo was taken. The photograph is owned by the Earl's family, and, according to reports, personally belonged to the Earl and his wife.
